With Diana's diverse background, it is little wonder that she has adapted quickly to work in the lighting industry.

Originally from Colombia, Diana has lived in Sydney for twelve years, initially putting her tourism degree and talents in customer service and management to work in the hospitality sector. The opportunity to join ERCO arose seven years ago, and Diana embraced the challenge of returning to the professional world and discovering a new field.

With an eye for detail and innate persistence, Diana fell naturally into the role of managing the intricacies of residential specification projects. This involves direct sales as well as the design and delivery of residential projects, working directly with property owners and their design teams, as well as with Channel Partners to develop the ERCO brand in the sector. To support her sales efforts, Diana also provides cluster-focussed presentations, workshops and webinars.

If you visit the Oceania Experience Centre in Sydney, you will be likely to meet Diana, who demonstrates ERCO product and Casambi integration in the various mock-up spaces – and if you're lucky, will make you some of her excellent coffee!
