With Diana's diverse background, it is little wonder that she has adapted quickly to work in the lighting industry.

Originally from Colombia, Diana has lived in Sydney for eight years, initially putting her tourism degree and talents in customer service to work in the hospitality sector. The opportunity to join ERCO arose four years ago, and Diana embraced the challenge of returning to the professional world and discovering a new field.

With an eye for detail and innate persistence, Diana fell naturally into the dual role of managing some of the intricate smaller specification projects and product sample control. Now with considerably more experience under her belt, Diana has expanded her role into direct sales. She focuses on the design and delivery of residential projects, and works with Channel Partners to develop the ERCO brand in the Retail and Hospitality sectors. This includes with the delivery of cluster-focused presentations, workshops and webinars.

If you visit the Oceania Experience Centre in Sydney, you will be likely to meet Diana, who demonstrates ERCO product and Casambi integration in the various mock-up spaces – and if you're lucky, will make you some of her excellent coffee!
